SLEEP AMONG THE ASIATICS.—Rev. Mr Silver Anon the Asiatrics.—Rev. Mr. Dall, the Unitarian Missionary at Calcutta, in describing the way of life in summer, with the thermometer at 100 in the daytime, and 85 to 85 in the might, says that wakefulness is the exception and drewsing the rule. The poor, old or young, who brings you a note from his "mister" a word in which Asiatic reverence delights, no sooner delivers it than he flings blinself on his back, at full length, and is sound asleep in three quarcourse, asleep in their palankeens, which, by the way, are never called palankeens here but palkeys. When the rajahs, &c., see English people dancing at Government flouse they ask in wonder "Why not make your servants do this?" Eternal sleep in the biss of God, and "never be been again." It appears by an article in the Chicago Republican that the men of that place have a harbarous way of maiming and disabling women after they have served their pleasure. Writing of the west of the facage and of Mr. Buck, the great frog catcher, it says: "Whea Mr. Buck first began to kill them It was easy work, for they did not seem to tear him. But this is all ever now, and the frogs bave lost all their old faith in men. They see that men only seek after hem to cut off their him legs and cast their aside as they do women after having won heir love.

The liveliest book of the season, by all odds is wail Hamilton a "Wool Gathering." It is craumed fill of racy anecdote, and clever description, and wholesome sentiment, and vigorous dennuciation, where the subject sequires that, strong upon the thread of a narrative of journeyings through the West and South. The haps and mishaps, trials, tribulations, and en-joyments of travelers by rail and steamer, are sketched with wonderful accuracy, in a series of panoramic word-pictures, which show the keen, observant are of the artist.

Harriet Houner was the occasion of naming Mount Hoamer, on the Upper M ssissippi. She challenged a number of athlete young mea on board of the steamhoat on which she was passing up the river, to beat her in a race to the top of the hluff until then not named. They accepted the "gaze of hattle, and exerted their best efforts to leave her in the rear, but she reached its summit in advance of all of them, though only after a sharp contact and so the admiring citizens of Lansing gave her name to this cliff in honor of the deed she had performed.

pondent of the Boston Journsi: The has kept very quiet since he has been in New York. He dislikes parade and attention. He says he never gets into a carriage on great occasions, when crowds surround him and shout his name, but what, mingling with the pageant, are the groans of the wounded, the sick boys in the hospital, and the dead and dying on the battle-field. He has two or three cozy nooks in New York, into which he retires with a few friends to enjoy a condidential chat. He is very peculiar in his habits. It is said he has not drank a glass of spiri' since he was appointed Lieutenant-General. He is breaking himself of his nordinate use of cigars, sensible that in the inaction of peace the custom hurts his health. Nobody can get any thing out of him by asking questions. He seldom answers any that are put to him, but if left to himself he will talk freely, clearly, and fully on public matters. Since he has been in New York on this visit he has spent hours in friendly conversation. To all matters touching the Presidency he makes hut one reply. He hopes he uver shall leave the army. That when his active service is over he shall still be connected with the corps he loves so well. He is not without his solicitude in regard to public events. He considers matters more critical than hefore the surrender of Lee. Some one said to him, General Grant, we do not know what is before us, but as long as you are at the head of the army the country feels sate, for it has undiminished confidence in you. Your death or removal from the army would not only be a national confidence as to well-nigh produce a revolution. General Grant said nothing, but his eyes mostened with tears—a degree of emotion he seldom exhibits.

The following "remarkable story of a cat" is so curious and romantic that we extract it:

"A man named Amey was charged at Marlborough-street Police Court yesterday with assaulting his wife. The only point of interest in the case was the way in which the woman was saved from further ill-treatment. Her husband knocked her down, jumped on her, and then throwing himself on her, seized her by the throat, and attempted to strangle her; but while she lay on the ground screaming a favorite cat, named Topsy, suddenly sprang on her hushand and fastened her claws in his eyes and her teeth in his face. Her husband could not tear the cat away, and he was chiliged to implore her totake it from him to save his life. The husband got a mouth's bard labor. The report does not dered Topsy to have a treat at the expense of the noer-har." say whether 'the worthy magistrate' ordered Topsy to have a treat at the expense of the poor-box."

ever taken an interest in the education of a 'our young.' I feel it to be my duly to say a few words in regard to our Female and Male Iligh Schools. Our Female Iligh School, I am happy to say, is in all probability as fine an institution for the education of young ladies as can be found in the Luited States, and has perhaps as well educated a corps of professors to msnage the school as can be obtained anywhere. This institution is now in a prosperous condition, and that it may n a prosperous condition, and that it may continue to so remain is the fervent wish in a prosperous condition, and that it may continue to so remain is the fervent wish of the indersigned.

Of the Male High School, I am sorry to say, so good an account can liardly be given, for it is said by those who know anything of it, that "it is rather in a declining than in a prosperous condition." It seems to me that there is not the same interest felt by our citizens in this school as there was years ago. The majority of the people do not seem to appreciate the value of a good High School as they then did. They do not seem to feel how necessary it is that young men (no matter what business or profession they may follow) should have a good classic education. They do not seem to feel how important it is that their children should grow up an ornament to themselves and to society. rnament to themselves and to sou ornament to themselves and to society. They do not seem to think of the necessity of their children having something more than a common school education, so that in maturity they may be competent to perform their mission on earth.

Some say, and it may be true, that this is but imagination of mine, but it is not the lack of interest on the part of our citizens that causes this declination in the Male High School, but it is the lack of interest on the part of our trustees of the public schools. I, am well aware of the lack that about two years ago there was a great deal of talk among the Board of Trustees about hreaking up the Male, but

Bowling Green—The vote is as follows at the closing of the polls: For Governor—J. L. Helm, Democrat, 322; W. B. Kinkead, Third party, 13*; Sidney Barnes, radical, 28. For Congress—J. R. Golleday, Democrat, 204; Dr. Curd, independent, 60. Legislature—H. K. Thomas, Democrat, 127. Senate—W. H. Payne, Democrat, 127. Senate—W. H. Senate of the polls of talk among the Board of Trustees about breaking up the Male Righ School. Now, every man of sound mind knows full well that the education of man is far more necessary that that of woman, owing to the nobler and more useful duties that he has to perform. Happily, at that time they were dissuaded from their efforts to do away with the High School hypetition from all quarters. When they elected the professor of modern languages, the professor of modern languages, the professor of modern languages, the professor of the school; but since then I have been alter the school; but since then I have been alter the school in their estimation, let them remedy the evil at the ballot-hox. That is indeed the only manner in which we can take the matter in our own hands. Let us send men there who will labor zealously for the welfare of education, and education alone, that lies at the ballot-hox. Let the present Board of Trustees awake and know their duty, let them do what they can for the benefit of the Male High School before the next session comnences. If nothing is done the institution is paid must necessarily, if not attention is paid must necessarily, if not a present the superconduction is paid. present subsequently cease to exist. A Difficulty with the Argentine New York, Aug. 5.

New York, Aug. 5.
The correspondence between the United States Minister Asboth and the Minister of foreign abairs of the Argent ne Confederation is published. The former, it appears, was ditermined to press upon the Argentine Government the friendly offices of the American Government. In doing so he took a somewhat captious meaning out of the reply of the latter, refusing such offices. The consequence was Gen. Asboth was cartly told his remarks would not be considered.

DESTRUCTIVE CONFLAGRATION, OVER $14.000 WORTH OF PROPERTY DE-

Yesterday morning at about 61 o' loc' a signal of fire was sounded from Box No. 11, corner of Main and Sixth streets. The conflagration proved to be at the malthouse belonging to Joseph Stein, on the east side of Sixth street, between Main and the river. The building was entirely consumed, with all its appurtenances, besides 25,000 bushels of malt. The building was valued at $12,000, and the malt at over $2,000. The establishment was insured for $10,000, but as there is some will at least be litigated. Mr. Stein had only very lately negotiated for this estabishment, and it will be a serious loss therefore to him. The Norwegian Government has just completed a monitor at a cost of £50,000, which carries in a turret two Armstrong guns, which throw 350-pound shot with a charge of 44 pounds of powder. The gnns weigh 74,000 pounds. Notwithstanding this, the machinery for working them is so excellent that they can be maneuvered by one man alone. The sides of the iron turret are eleven inches thick, and are lined inside with horsehair mattresses. The monitor is worked by engines of 150 horsepower, and is manned by eighty men, twenty of whom attend to the engines, and twenty man the guns.

The Pope is at this moment in a quandary. At the beginning of this month he denounced the Italian Kingdom, pronouncing it "accursed of God," and predicting its rmin. Before the end of the month he is under the necessity of receiving the offerof this same accursed Kingdom to prevent the overthrow of his power by the Garibaldiana. The Pope, one should think, must feel mean when compelled to take shelter under the flag of a Government against which he has just lannched his maledictions. He must hereafter be more cautious with his cursea.

Ponsard, the greatest tragic poet of the day, whose cold correctness has replaced the burning romance and poetry of Victor Hugo, has just died, after a protracted illness bronght on by anxiety and overwork. His last play of "Gallleo" was eminently successful, but it was considered a hazardons experiment, and it is thought to have given his system, already much tried, the last fattal shock. The natter prostration in which this disease cancer in the stomach, had left him, can be imagined when it is known that the first night of the performance of "Galileo" a telegram was dispatched at the close of every act, to let the poet know the progress of the piece with the public. When his friends returned from the theater, full of joy to congratulate him on having obtained the ongratulate him on having obtained the

A sad tale was recently told at an in-uest held at Bideford, Lingland, by the rother of a man who was killed while earching for gulle eggs on the cliffs thich form the aland of Lundy, in the string channel. James and John Brannd errething con nied when strainty aparts hus occ pied, when, straying apart com each other for a few minntes, John eard a fall. He went to the edge, and, down the side of the clift, hanging by his nands to a little jutting piece of rock, and searching with his feet for the smallest foothold. It was vain; the rock was hard as adamant and smooth as glass, and he hung a chasm of full three hundred feet yawning below him. Help from above was impossible; a foothold below there was none, and certain death stared him in the face. With the iron grip of despair the poor fellow hung on a few minute that seemed like hours to his helpless brother watching him from above, and at last, with a wild scream, James Braund released his hold and plunged headlong down, his head being shivered to fragments egainst a projecting erag in the descent.

There is a furore in Paris for a new etyle of watch. It is large, made of ebony and ornamented at the back with the initials of the owner in silver, or else with fanciful arabesques. The dial plate, which is small, is surrounded by a thick circle of ebony, the fingers and hours being in silver. This watch hangs from an elegan charles he rungs of which a reing in silver. This watch hangs from an ebony chatchaine, the rings of which are ornamented with silver, and joined together, either by bars or balls of silver, according to the pattern of the chatchaine. There is an attempt to introduce brooches and ear-rings in the same style, but they are not yet adopted. As to the watches, they are to be seen at the waisthands of all the elegantes especially when they wear the elegantes especially when they wear the inevitable fancy black dress.

It occurred to some one in London to introduce two monkeys, "properly called, not the same cage with an orang-outang. Grand airs on the part of the orang drew the guests toward himself by their chain, menacing them with a stick which he had Liverything in him commanded, everything in them submitted. The orang said plainly, "Peasants, clodpins" The monkeys replied meekly: "Monseigneur, bighneas! The contrast, writes J. Grant, was most striking, it was impossible not to feel that the orang was of an order and intelligence much the most elevated.

Mr Van Lewis Swearinger Rowan, residing at l'ulaski, Ill, is a poet—and doubtless a pholosopher as well, as will appear from what we are able to relate. Up to the third of July, be possessed a wife—yes, "a wife with lsughing eye, which eye seemed to have bent with favor inpon one Thomas Monroe Lyons, a widower with two children, and claiming to be s. Pittsburgher. On the 3d, and doubtless in anticipation of celebrating in a fitting manner the "glorions Fourth," she eloped with the aforesaid Thomas Monroe Lyons. Van Lewis, rising to the magnitude of the occasion, in a poetical way, and despising sneh unpoetical articles in pittols and cowhides, relieved himself in inditing and publishing the following "Lines Composed on the Departure of My Companion." the Departure of My Companion:

"Truant wife with laughing eye.
(barming the winged butterfly,
Wasting your ilfe away—
After other men people say—
Think of thy husband.

This stanza invites the belief that Mr. lowan and his family lived in a patriar-hial way under a tree. His partner may save unpoetically sighed for a frame nouse, and the artful Mr. Lyons overpowclap-board roof was the seductive centre-

"What are hours to me when you have gone And left me all alone?

Pause 'Try looi hath touched the brink
Wheet the water-lines drink
Moisten your heart with me by the silent stream.

Think of thy husband."

Think or thy absorand."
The inexplicable imagery of Mr. Rowan reminds us of Swinburne's occasional bashes of bottomless profundity.

"Gitterfing in the sonry beam.

That is me, her bneband.

Tirad she rests on yonder rose; some her anger chase will close, Friend, etreich forth thy frand and save. For she ne longer la my own."

The deserted minstrelthen supplements his poem with the following matchless production in prose: "EXPLANATORY.

His adventure relates to his dancing the cetillon strhe great ball of the "bean Lundi", when the gardens of the palace were illuminated, and the staircase, in painted canvas ly M. Alphaud was added on to the stone perron by Philibert Delorem. "The Empress was approaching, saye M. Be Bismarck. "In her suit was a lady of great beauty, and of the same exquisitely graceful bearing as her Maj sty. Her fair hair was gathered up according to the present fashion, in a tremendous club behind, and in front was suffered to blow hither and thither, oved by the night breeze of the garden, in the lightest and most careless manner imaginable. I was standing lefore the statue of the dying Lais, looking round in embarrassment lest ary one should be near, and feeling unture table wonder that the strong current of electric light should be directed straight upon this rather decollete work of art, so that all Paris above a certain level could not fail to have this point de mire before their eyes, when the pattering of little feet upon the gravel announced the advancing of the hitle group, and I withdrew discreetly, not caring to embarrass the halies by my apparent attent in to this extraordancy of mary statue, sprawing so conspicuously beneath the torrent of light directed full upon it. But my retreat was ent off by the fair beanty I had observed before. She playfully objected to my withdrawing, and soon was joined by other ladies, until we formed a most pleasing coterie. The lady asked me if the gardens of Poissam were to be compared to those of the Turleries, and then other questions equally harmless, and, finally, whether the Prussian ladies ever bestowed a discreti in on the cavalier of their choice. I frankly owned my ignorance of any such custom. She then laughingly stepped upon the grass, and gathering a rose from the corner tree presented it to me, saying. Now that is a discretion; you are entitled to claim any favory on may choose. The privilege of a dance, said i, not wishing to

"There is one marked difference in the characters of the Japanese and the Chinese which is already becoming apparent to our people. The Japanese are quick to appreciate the advantages of foreign improvements of all kinds, and readily adopt our manners sud customs when traveling among us. They are auxions to perfect themselves in all our arts, and to study our institutions in the minutest details. In this they differ from the Chinaman. wealth coming to study our customs and learn all which is worth their learning of our laws, institutions, and civilization generally.

There are already four Japanese students in our city college, where no Chinaman ever entered even as a spectator, and by the Colorado, on her last trip, came a num for of Japanese gentlemen who propose to study the art of navigation and marine warfare, as taught at the Mare Island Navy-yard, under Admiral Craven. One of them is a prince, and he daily promenades Montgonery street with two or three followers, wearing a curious sheep-shed shaped, three-cornered his of glazed material, and two swords is his girdle. His servants have already atopted the full American costume, and he is naking progress in that direction, having already got as far as the pantaloons, coat, vest, and boots.

These fellows have a sharp eye to business, and if they could he promised aprotection against nujust laws, and the violence which is constantly practiced on the Chinese by the half-civilized, ignorant, and degraded porsion of our population, native and foreign born, they would soon be bere in force. They see thousands of acres of rich lands in the low valleys of the Sacramento and San Joaquin lying idle and unproductive, and would buy it and turnit into rice and corn fields immediately, adding thereby millions to the taxable property of our State. As it is some of them now offer to contract for ten thousand skilled laborers and artisans, warranted superior to the Chinese for field-work or work-shops, or on railroads, at less wages than the latter now earn, and it way be that the Central Pacific Railroad Company will make a contract with some of them as an experiment.

The Chinese have worked so well on the railroad that the company would employ more (they now have 11,000 of them at work) if they could get them, and may take Japanese instead. The Japanese are inquiring into our modes of doing business, and have already made arrangements for opening a large Japanese store in San Francisco. The extensiv
